

Respect and benevolence charter BeCook!

In addition to the respect of diversity, the strong consideration of environmental sustainability, we are committed to a management that ensures the quality of human relations, the respect of the safety of goods and people, and the daily cleanliness of work spaces and materials.

Therefore, we have developed a strong internal communication with both our staff and clients. Not only concerning the rules of politeness and benevolence between everybody present in our company and external people, but also on our cleaning rules before, during and after work.

It would therefore be responsible for both staff and clients to dispose of all waste in the appropriate garbage cans provided, and not to leave anything lying around. Sorting is an integral part of our operation in order to improve and pursue our commitment to the circular economy and zero waste.

We also recommend cleaning up after each visit in the sanitary facilities, the changing rooms or the meeting room.

It's also important to ensure the cleaning of work equipment such as: washing machines, kitchen utensils, stoves, and materials inside each kitchen. In addition, it's essential to take care of the equipment provided for future users.

In short, diversity, ecology, respect and benevolence for goods and people constitute the DNA of the company, therefore, it would be ideal for our staff, clients and partners to imbibe these values with responsibility.
